INSURE YOUR PROPERTY

THE HANDSOME BUILDING OF TODAY
may be a shapeless wreck tomorrow. Fire respects nothing. It devours the mansion as well as the hovel. The only protection against loss by fire is insurance. Its low cost makes going without it a sign of very short sightedness. Are you insured?

—The first lecture in a series of five that have been arranged by Mrs. Wm. M. Hatch, chairman of the dramatic committee of the Arlington Woman's club, was given last Monday afternoon, at 128 Pleasant St. Miss Crook, associated with Prof. Baker of Harvard, has been engaged to give this course and her lecture on the opening date fully demonstrated her ability not only to instruct along the line of dramatic appreciation, but also to entertain her audience. Miss Crook confined her lecture chiefly to telling of the dramatic story that is being carried on at Harvard and Radcliffe colleges, under Prof. Baker, which is known as the "47 Work Shop." The following lectures will deal principally with one-act plays, discussing their technique and comparing plays of the earlier school with those of the present. The course promises to be one of special interest.

WEEK-DAY PULPIT

of the
First Congregational Parish (Unitarian).

Rev. Frederic Gill, Minister, 15 Devereux Street.
Suppose Arlington had no churches, would you want your family to remain here long? How long would you care to live here if the local churches were to go out of existence? The churches strengthen the things that make business, home, and life itself secure and sound. You profit by their work; what are you doing to aid that work? You can help Arlington, you can help America, by putting your power into the work of the churches in this town.

GENERAL COURT MEETS.

After a vacation of fifteen days between sessions, the 1919 officer's of the Mass. Legislature are again on duty with the 1920 session, which convened on Wednesday, the members of the new body being well content to re-elect men who had served with such general satisfaction.

CHARLES C. WARREN.
Representative for Arlington Dist.

At the end of the five-year term of Mr. Jacob Bitzer, Arlington is represented by a new man, Mr. Charles C. Warren, who in the distribution of committee positions, was given a place on the ways and means committee, a signal honor to a new man. Mr. Warren has served several years as chairman of the Republican Town Committee and consequently has come into close personal touch with a wide circle. How efficient that committee became under his management, the results at recent elections evidence.

TO HELP THE TAXPAYER.

Were you one of thousands of persons who, last year, with unquestioned honesty of purpose, filed an incorrect tax return? Are you, or have you been a claimant for refund taxes overpaid? Have you been called upon by the bureau of internal revenue for payment of amounts owed the government through inadvertence or omissions in making out your income tax form? To sum it up, have you experienced trouble of any kind in filing your income tax return for 1918?

If so, this is written for your benefit and for the benefit of more than 3,000,000 taxpayers who, on or before March 15, will file income tax returns for the year 1919. It is certain a percentage of these returns will be incorrect. It is equally certain that the percentage of errors may be largely reduced if taxpayers will acquaint themselves with the income tax provisions of the act of Feb. 24, 1919, known as the revenue act of 1918, which provides for the collection of taxes for the year 1919 and subsequent years.

As an aid to taxpayers there has been prepared with the official approval of the bureau of internal revenue, a series of short articles, of which this is the first, telling how to make out an income tax return for 1919, when and where to file it, and what to do in case you meet with unusual difficulties. By making note of the information contained therein, it is believed that most of the difficulties heretofore encountered may be avoided.

Probably the most important change affecting the average taxpayer is in the normal rate, the exemptions of $1000 for single persons and $2000 for married persons and heads of families remaining the same as for 1918. The normal rate for 1919 is 4 per cent. on the first $4000 of net income above the exemptions and 8 per cent. on the remaining net income. The normal rate for 1918 was 6 and 12 per cent., respectively. This applies to every citizen and resident of the United States. Alien non-residents receiving income from sources within the United States are taxed to the full 8 per cent. on the income from such sources.

The surtax rates, which range from 1 per cent. on the amount of net income between $5000 and $6000 to 65 per cent. on the amount of income in excess of $1,000,000, remain unchanged.

The tax, as in 1919, may be paid in full at the time of filing the return, or in four instalments, the first of which is due on or before March 15, the second on or before June 15, the third on or before Sept. 15, and the fourth on or before Dec. 15. The first instalment must accompany the filing of the return. The period of filing is from Jan. 1 to March 15. Heavy penalties are provided for persons who fail or willfully refuse to file their return and pay the tax within the time prescribed.

Forms for making returns may be obtained from offices of collectors of internal revenue and deputy collectors, postoffices and banks. If your income for 1919 was $5000 or less, ask for Form 1030 A. If it was more than $5000 ask for Form 1040. Returns must be filed with the collector of internal revenue for the district in which the taxpayer lives or has his principal place of business.

A LAND WITHOUT MONEY.

Money is a medium of exchange; but suppose we should wake up some morning in a world where there is no need of exchange. In this world we must give to a bit of paper, or silver, or gold, a value in order to facilitate the exchange of products, but in some other world, in this sense, there may not be any products. Here we eat foods and wear clothes, and live in houses, but in some other world we may neither eat foods, nor wear clothes, nor live in houses. Even now these things are needful for this body; and if it shall be in the future that any such bodies as we now have shall be unknown, then food, and raiment, and shelter, will not be necessary. Money such as we now have would be useless.

Of course this supposition is rather confusing because we have been accustomed to this world since childhood. There are portions of the earth where the people do not need money to secure needful things, but they are uncivilized lands. The higher the civilization, the more important becomes money as a medium of exchange. Yet this earth is a temporary abode only; our present bodies evidently belong to our present world. They must be left here.

Of course this does not mean that we shall not have bodies in another world; but at any rate they will not be like our present bodies unless the world yonder is very much like this one. On Mars, the physical conditions are said to be very much like those on the earth; and yet if we migrate to that Planet we may not be reclothed in flesh and blood. What is meant by a spiritual body we do not know, except a body suited to the spirit. In other words, spirit, the real person, the thoughtful man and woman, familiar though they may be, are yet mysterious. We do not know the essence of spirit any more than the length and breadth of an idea. One may measure a board, but he cannot measure a thought; one may stamp paper or gold with a certain value, but he cannot so stamp the product of the mind.

Now we are told that heaven is a land or a locality where money hasn't any value. The millionaire and the penniless are on an equal footing in that region beyond. Money cannot be carried over the river. Only moral and spiritual worth can be transferred thither. Money may of course represent worth—it may have been the garment of thought and affection, and noble service; but if it is only riches laid up, there it will remain.

Suppose we were transferred to a land where money would be of no more value than waste paper; what then? Suppose even that in that "land beyond the swelling flood," there were no need of what we call exchange, what then? Suppose the question of food and raiment, and shelter were eliminated, what then? There would not be any feverish desire to get money. One would not need to put money in his purse, since it would not do any good. One of the great temptations would be cut out. Then the hope of outwitting one's neighbor would not torment the ambitious, because there would not be any gain in so doing—at least so far as trade is concerned. There will not be any brokers, or merchants in heaven, pursuing their calling, or even speculators.

And the inequalities caused by money would not exist. There would not be either rich or poor, millionaires or paupers. The poor may be always with us in this world—but they will not be with us as such in another world. Men will not carry a bank account nor stocks in the home of Jesus and his friends. Moreover the distinctions, social and otherwise, which are created here by money will not obtain in the land where there is no money. This will reverse seeming values. Not a few depend upon their riches for their standing, and once wipe out their riches and there isn't much left. Jesus made this very clear in the parable of Dives and Lazarus.

But most of all, in such a world men will learn the value of worth—moral, and spiritual, and intellectual worth. Money cannot buy anything in that land; will not have any value, whatever is stamped upon it. And may it not be fortunate that in the universe somewhere, souls shall be taught beyond peradventure that money is not power, is only a commodity in a world where it is current; that it has value only as a means to an end. The imperishable things in this or any other world are moral and spiritual, found only in the human soul.

ABATE NEW HOUSE TAXES.

Mr. Editor:—There is a serious shortage of houses in Arlington. Rents are going up. The law of supply and demand makes this imperative. People are bidding against each other to get a place to live. If you own a house and I have been forced out through change of ownership or some other cause, I must have a place to live. How am I to get it? Simply by bidding a higher price than the other fellow.

We cannot blame the house owner. Almost before he knows there is going to be a vacancy in his house, he is besieged with people who want to rent it from him. The highest bidder gets it,—sometimes unsight and unseen. It is not he who is raising rents, it is you and I who must have this scarce article. If water was almost unobtainable and no immediate renewal of supply in sight, we would pay hundreds of dollars for a tub full, because we must have it. The owner of that water could not be blamed for the price, because we would offer it to him to get it. We would make the price.

So it is with house and apartments. There are none. Very, very few houses are being built. There is practically no chance of any material increase in the present supply for some time. Therefore, under these conditions, RENTS ARE HIGH AND WILL GO HIGHER. The only solution is to build more houses.

How can this be done?

Does it cost more to build now than it did before the war? Yes, 70 per cent to 100 per cent. Will this increase of price remain, or will we be able to build for less later on? This is a big question and could be taken up at a length greater than you will allow; but let it be said that it is the consensus of opinion of my brother architects, of building material men and of the U. S. Government, that there will be no great drop in price for some years; that prices will be higher before they are lower and that prices will never drop to the pre-war level.

Will not a house built now be a poor investment should prices drop? Arlington, in common with the whole country, is from three to five years underbuilt and with the very high rents prevailing now the returns, by setting aside a sinking fund, would be enough to take care of lower values later. A house (not land) is expected to depreciate from 1 per cent to 3 per cent a year, according to its construction. Hence reduced value is to be expected but is taken care of.

But how can we build these needed houses? The matter of finances is for the banks and for each individual to solve. We must encourage them somehow. HOW? Here is one way. It will cost you and I nothing and will help us all in many ways.

Pass an order at the next Town Meeting, or appeal to the legislature if this is not legal, To ABATE the TAXES on all single and two-family houses (not the land), erected in Arlington from January 1, 1920 to March 31, 1922, which are built or in process of construction for, and to be occupied in whole or in part continuously between these dates by a resident of Arlington at the last assessment day, April 1.

The passage of this order would tend to increase building and thus stop further rent inflation. It is intended that it shall aid residents of Arlington only, for there is no reason why we should aid Boston or Everett. Let them take care of their own residents in a similar way. It would cost us nothing, because the town would still tax the land upon which the house stands, but would rather materially help us by increasing the town's valuation after 1922. If the owner sells or does not occupy such a house during this period, he forfeits the right to benefit under the order and his house would be taxed the same as any. It increases the number of house owners, which is desirable and does not help the speculative builder, who is in business for profit only though it does not injure him in any way. It will not hurt the present house owner. Remember we are three to five years underbuilt.

Let us all help. It is a serious matter. If there are other better ways trot them out. I will pledge myself to help.

G. BERTRAM WASHBURN.

THE OTHER WOMAN INTERRUPTED HIS HONEYMOON.

Of course, this can never happen to you, but suppose on the first evening of your honeymoon the "other woman" should call and demand a hearing and discuss, you and your past with your young wife.

This interesting situation is one ground which Albert Payson Terhune, in December Cosmopolitan, has built a remarkable story. To be sure the incident is somewhat fanciful, but we can well afford to spend a little time reading of the romantic possibilities of such an encounter.

As for the outcome of it, we would suggest that you let Mr. Terhune tell you in his own way, through the pages of the new Cosmopolitan, which is one of the most remarkable magazines on sale this month.

The following list of writers certainly entitles Cosmopolitan to call itself "America's Greatest Magazine": Rupert Hughes, Peter B. Kyne, James Oliver Curwood, Harris Dickson, Meredith Nicholson, Harvey O'Higgins, Arthur Somers Roche, and a host of other world-famous writers.

The Cosmopolitan was placed on sale at the local agencies on Jan. 2. Buy it.

NAMING WINNERS.

"Achievement Club Messenger" is the title of a four-page paper, issued by Robert P. Trask of Waltham, County Club Leader of the achievement movement in Middlesex county. In the December issue just received, we find the following items which are of local interest:—

Middlesex County achievement clubs are to have a county organization. At an open forum of club members, leaders and interested citizens, after the general session of the County Bureau meeting at Ford Hall, it was voted to build up a county organization with a director from each town where there is club work and officers chosen from these directors. There will be a semi-annual meeting of this group at which it will be possible for boys and girls in all club activities in all sections of the county to get together to discuss their plans and get inspiration from the success of others. This organization will be along the lines already adopted by the Norfolk County success clubs and formerly used in Hampden County. In the next issue of the Messenger the names of the directors will be announced. Early in the spring there will be a meeting called at which permanent officers will be elected.

The forum meeting endorsed the Bureau plan which recommends the organization of a committee on club work in each town, composed of school officials and other persons interested in boys and girls, the chairman of this committee to be a member of the local County Bureau committee. This will make it possible to increase the efficiency of club work by more publicity and better local leadership.

Club work made a big hit with the 300 people who attended the annual meeting because of the splendid stories told by club representatives Wilfred Tuttle, Arlington, and Hazel Miller, Ayer.

Wilfred's story of his profits in vegetable gardening was told in a straight forward, businesslike manner that made a great impression on the farmers present at the meeting. Hazel in her talk told of her experience in leading the home economics club and organizing the canning club without adult supervision. She made a fine appeal to the older folks to get back to club work in their communities so that every boy and girl in the county may benefit from it.

Thirty home economics and canning club members dressed in their caps and aprons added much to the occasion by the very acceptable manner in which they served at the dinner.

Wilfred Tuttle of Arlington, who was the 1918 market garden champion, almost landed two championships this year and much credit is due him for the splendid work which he accomplished on a town lot more than a mile from his own house. He made a profit of $126.08 on his garden and potatoes.

The poultry champion of the county organization is Charles Odenweller of Arlington.

CHURCH OF OUR SAVIOUR THE YEAR'S WORK.

At the close of a most successful year, in which time the new church building has been completed, stands first and foremost the fact that it is entirely free from debt, quite a remarkable feature. Since its dedication, June 22, 1919, its membership has been steadily increasing, while the enrollment of the Sunday school has actually doubled.

There are a number of things yet to be done and whereas the church is on a better financial basis than ever, still it urges the hearty cooperation of its parish. This has been accomplished through diligence and perseverance on the part of those active in raising funds, and the ready response of the many interested, but without the kindness of heart of the rector, Rev. Warren N. Bixby, in giving generously both of his time and money, we would not have realized the present outcome. Let us with the New Year continue with an added zeal and may each and every Episcopalian in this part of Arlington be responsive in doing their bit.

One way to reduce carbon trouble

Heavy carbon deposits in the combustion chamber and on piston heads cause lots of engine trouble ranging from pre-ignition of the fuel charge to the destruction of the lubricating oil. This can be avoided. With uniform, high grade gasoline that possesses even vaporizing and ignition qualities, carburetion can be so perfectly regulated that the fuel charge is burned up completely, leaving a minimum of carbon deposit.

SOCONY Motor Gasoline meets every motor fuel requirement. It is carefully refined to a definite standard of high quality. It is as uniform as modern science can make it. Its carburetion and ignition qualities assure dependable power under all weather conditions. Standardize on SOCONY for motoring economy and satisfaction.

JOINT INSTALLATION.

Monday evening in G. A. R. Hall, the newly elected officers of Charles V. Marsh Camp 45, Sons of Veterans, and Auxiliary 45, affiliated with the camp, were publicly installed, the occasion being a red letter one in the history of both organizations.

The ceremonies were witnessed by a large number, many coming from camps and auxiliaries of adjoining towns and cities, members of the G. A. R. being present; also members of the W. R. C. The officers of the Auxiliary were installed first, the work being performed by Mrs. Alice A. Pratt, past-president, her guide being Mrs. Pearl F. Safford. The officers inducted into office were, Mrs. I. Pearl Vaughn, president; Mrs. Augusta Young, vice-president; Mrs. Mabelle M. Ham, Mrs. Elizabeth C. Turner and Mrs. Alice V. Wallace, trustees; Mrs. Clara O. Powers, treasurer; Miss Beulah Ham, secretary; Charlotte E. Jenkins, patriotic instructor; Mrs. Mabel E. Paine, chaplain; Mrs. Mabelle M. Ham, guide; Mrs. Etta G. Whitten, assistant guide; Mrs. Mabel Paine, color bearer number one; Mrs. Minnie W. Ennis, color bearer number two; Mrs. Elizabeth C. Turner, inside guard; Mrs. Clara E. Alexander, outside guard; Mrs. Lucretia X. Floyd press correspondent. Immediately following this installation exercises, the newly installed president, in behalf of the other members of the Auxiliary, presented the installing officer and her guide with appropriate gifts. In a well worded speech she also presented the secretary, Miss Beulah Ham, with a mark of appreciation.

The officers of Camp 45 were installed by Past Division Commander, Frank L. Kirchgassner, with Fred J. Lounsbury as guide. The officers installed were, George F. Greene, commander; Oscar J. Teel, senior vice-commander; Theodore F. Longwood, junior vice-commander; Charles E. Jenkins, Roscoe C. Young, Russell A. Ennis camp council; I. Waldo Floyd, secretary; Orlando J. Sebott, treasurer; Russell A. Ennis, patriotic instructor; Edgar D. Andrews, chaplain; Charles E. Jenkins, guide; Clarence E. Powers, color bearer; Fred T. Waugh, musician; James Caswell, inside guard; John J. Mcaney, outside guard. During the evening short speeches were made by the newly installed heads of the two organizations, the installing officers and their assistants; Past Department Commander Alfred H. Knowles, Mrs. Thomas O. D. Urquhart, president of the W. R. C. and Frank V. Bell, Mass. Division council. The evening closed with a collation in the banquet hall.

NEW YEAR PARTY.

The New Year party given by the Sunday school of First Parish (Unitarian) church on the evening of Jan. 2, consisted of a bountiful supper, served at six o'clock, in charge of the supper committee, Miss Elinor Homer, chairman, with Mrs. Roscoe Perry in charge of the dining room. This was followed by a brief address given by Dr. Dieffenbach, which tended to create more interest in the Laymen's League, a new activity in process of organization in this town.

The entertainment of the evening was perhaps the most successful and interesting of the many given by this parish. Miss Elizabeth Smith, chairman of the entertainment committee, deserves unstinted praise for the success of this part of the program. An orchestra, with the following personnel; Evelyn Swan, Edgar Rosie, violins; Marion Rowe, cello; Parker Wood, flute; Jerome Keleher, drums; Edward Bailey, trumpet; Dorothy Meserve, piano, furnished the first two numbers, with musicianly skill, the ensemble effect being a fine blending of the instruments. Little Barbara Winn, in a costume of sixty years ago, brought forth enthusiastic applause with the old song, "Comin' thro' the rye." She was accompanied by Miss Buttrick. After another orchestral number, followed "The Soldier's Dream." The soldier, Captain A. Heath Onthank, prepared for an evening's comfort, lounging in an easy Morris chair and with the newspaper, falls asleep and in a dream, is visited by various girls whom he has known during his life. Mrs. Ida Hooker was reader for the sketch and Theodore and Edward Schwamb, accompanied by Mrs. William Keleher, sang songs appropriate to each character. His first love, a little country girl, was impersonated by Cynthia Hutchinson, who looked sweet in the simple costume of pinafore and sunbonnet. While she stood before the soldier's vision, the song, "Wait till the cows come home," was rendered. Then followed Anna Fellows, as the bathing girl, wearing a bathing suit and carrying a parasol while the Schwamb brothers sang, "The Beach at Waukegan." Ruth Darling as a coquette was attired in a dainty pink gown, wearing a large straw hat with streamers. The song, "The Soldier's College Days," was recalled when Amy Schwamb, with dignified cap and gown, carrying a diploma, appeared, accompanied by the strains of "A model college girl." Anna Hooker made a stunning girl, in riding costume, bringing reminiscences of jolly days. The song, "A hunting we will go," made a fitting selection for this part. Katharine Sawyer, in modish black seal skin costume, was the city girl who had charmed his imagination, and was accompanied by the air, "Just a girl like you." The golf girl, in bright red tam red golf jacket, white skirt and carrying a golf club, was represented by Elinor Russell, and the song, "O, what a pal was Mary," was very appropriate. The ever popular canteen girl, Margaret Munch, wore a green apron and fetching cap and of course, her song was "Salvation Lassie of Mine." The soldier awoke after the last of his "affaires de coeur." Verna Settle, a charming widow, wearing black and affecting a lorgnette, had left his dream with the tune of "Fascinating Widow," haunting his slumbers. As an appropriate closing number, the Schwamb brothers sang, "I'm forever blowing bubbles." The evening was greatly enjoyed by those attending and was voted a huge success.

REV. D. H. MARTIN, D. D.

Several weeks ago we announced a serious accident to Rev. Daniel H. Martin, D. D., of New York city, whose widow is a sister of the wife of Rev. S. C. Bushnell of Arlington Congregational church. Dr. Martin was apparently making a good recovery, but late last week he suffered an acute attack of indigestion, affecting the heart, which caused his death Jan. 2, at the home of one of his parishioners where he was a guest. Dr. Martin was widely known and from the Hudson (N. Y.) Republican we clip a resume of his life work, as follows:—

"He was a forceful orator and a wonderful executive. His eighteen years, pastorate of the First Reformed church of Newark, N. J., was a series of successes. Later he was called to the Glen Falls church, where he was also a great success; then to the Fort Washington Presbyterian church, where he was equally popular. He lectured frequently and his services were in great demand. His social nature endeared him to many and his ability as pastor and preacher gave him a great grip on a host of people who will truly mourn his untimely taking off. A few months ago he was hit by an automobile while crossing a street in New York and seriously injured, but he was recovering from this accident when his death occurred."

The funeral of Rev. Dr. D. H. Martin in New York, last Sunday afternoon, was a notable event, eighteen hundred persons being present at the Fort Washington Presbyterian church. There was a wonderful display of flowers and many beautiful tributes from officiating clergymen, including Dr. Charles E. Jefferson. The body remained in the church over night, with the elders of the church in attendance, until it was taken to the train on Monday morning. Mr. Charles T. Hartwell met the family at the Back Bay station at 2.19 p. m. on Monday, and in his finely efficient and courteous way, placed the body in the family vault at Mt. Auburn, Rev. S. C. Bushnell using the committal service and offering prayer. Mrs. Martin and her two daughters, after two days spent in Arlington, returned to their home in

New York on Wednesday. Mr. Bushnell will print in his calendar on Sunday, Dr. Martin's last message to his people, "A Daily Resolve for 1920."

Dramatic moments from four great stories!

SUDDENLY, round the corner whirled a shabby old depot hack; it was plainly empty, but the well-known negro driver seemed to be in a desperate hurry. He lashed the horses to a run. "Wonder who's going' to miss his train to-night," laughed Mr. Ludlum.

But the driver turned in to the Ludlum curb, threw his weight backward and checked the horses so sharply that they slid, and their shoes scratched sparks from the stone.

The driver stood up in his pulpit and shouted at the porch.

"Oh, Miz. Ludlum, your boy's drowned." Then he struck out with his whip; the horses plunged, the hack careened round the next corner and was gone.

THAT'S cheap and noisy melodrama," he scoffed, albeit a bit worriedly. "What do you mean?"

I mean just this, "he said: "Life is not worth the living without you. I came here to claim my rights. If you refuse me those rights, I'm not going on living. And I shall end things here and now, I have thought it all out. And I've come, ready," she finished, with a slight gesture toward the hand-bag she carried on her wrist. "I am not bluffing, Rolf. You have deserted me. You'll take me back, or there will be a human sacrifice here to adorn your wedding-night. Make your own choice."

The man felt a twinge of physical nausea at her flamboyant threats and at a memory they evoked.

SOMERS suddenly came to action. He jerked a revolver from his pocket, and there was a spurt of flame, the bullet slashing by my ear.

The frightened mare swerved and reared perilously near the edge of the road. Choked with rage, I tugged at the reins, keeping my eyes on Somers. There seemed no escape, and I couldn't even curse. I opened my mouth to shout; but the sudden rush of blood to my head caused a warm trickle in the very center of my forehead.

Somers instantly perceived it. It seemed to stagger him, for my eyes never left his face as I struggled with the reins. His imagination thoroughly tricked him. Slowly, with an expression of horror, he backed away into his darkness, still covering me uncertainly with his revolver but not daring to fire again. Then to my ears there came another sound from up the valley—the ringing, of the tonga horn.

WHEN Jim walked out of the barn, he walked into a determined young fist and some very unpleasant, choking language. But the return blow, though Sanford got ready for it as quickly as he could manage, didn't follow. Jim didn't go down; he only staggered a little, clenched his fists, and stood still.

"What do you mean, you—you?" Sanford spluttered.

"You've got your weight on the wrong foot, Sanford," said Jim. "If I got in quick with my left, where would you be? You want to think about those things, you know, when you go round punching people."

"Don't call me Sanford. And I want you to know that I'm here to protect my sister—"

"All right, Mr. Berrian. Do you figure that you've protected her enough now, or do you want to hit me again?"

DOING BUSINESS ON CHRISTIAN PRINCIPLES.

Christian men can do business in no other way. Other men can but they cannot. That is the price which they have to pay for being Christians, and they are willing to pay it. If they lose by it, well and good. It were better to stand by one's principles and take a loss than abandon them for the sake of gain. No Christian would ask that the standard of righteousness be lowered to suit his convenience.

But can business be done on Christian principles; and would it pay to do so? Who can doubt it? Nothing would pay better in the long run. It cost Jesus his life to live up to his principles, but those principles meant the salvation of the world.

Did it pay Lot to be a righteous man in Sodom? Would it have paid him not to be? There are greater losses than those of property, as Lot's wife discovered.

There is a type of Christianity, pseudo-christianity, which will not stand examination. It does not meet the test. It does not make strong men. It assumes that men can be made like ocean steamers, in watertight, non-communicating compartments, one for week days, another for Sundays; one in which he can retire and be safe.

After all, honesty is the best policy. The finest capital which any one can have is the deserved reputation for integrity. Success, so called, may be purchased at too high a price. The real reward is not found in what we win, but in what we are and do. No Christian can afford to do anything which is not legitimate.

THE LATEST ARK.

The deportation of "Reds" by the government is a long step toward a firmer handling of the immigrant. Heretofore our gates have been wide open to all in the old world who sought a home in the new. For many decades this was a perfectly safe policy. Those who came to our shores became our best or among our best citizens. Many distinguished names will be found among the immigrants of comparatively recent date. Nor will our gates ever be closed to those who would improve their circumstances, or find a larger opportunity for their powers.

The rounding up of the Reds is not intended to change our national policy toward the immigrant.

Hitherto the United States has been a refuge for the antagonist of old world governments; for the great and luminous souls who would not hide their light under a bushel; for men and women who dreamt of a better, if not an altruistic, world; for those who valued religious freedom above homeland and loving friends. And for all such the gates will not be shut, day or night. But of late the agitator, the enemy of all government and the awakeners of discontent, and the disregard of property and life, has passed through our gates, not to improve our land but to destroy it. Thousands of these reckless breakers of the peace have no intention of becoming citizens of our country, or respecting either its laws or its traditions, their only object being to destroy, to disorganize the body politic, to disrupt the social structure of the people.

To accomplish this they join labor organizations, sow tares in abundance, proclaim a new method for organizing the state, insisting on destroying, root and branch, the present social and civic order. They are not reformers against whom there cannot be any objection even though in disagreement, but they are destroyers, firebrands, conflagrationists. They may be sincere in their madness, they may believe that the new earth will only come by burning or blowing up the old one; but crazy people cannot be trusted to lead into "the land of pure delight."

This fact of the unbalanced, famatory, destructive, reckless men and women who make up the "Reds," should not be overlooked. Far be it from the nation to gag or forbid freedom of speech or of the press. The fullest liberty consistent with national safety will not be abridged. The very mission of democracy is to secure for every one this freedom.

In some instances overzealous officers may trench on personal liberty, but this blunder will soon be corrected. The error has been the other way in most instances, for freedom of speech has been secured to those who have woefully abused it. Even when the nation was in the throes of civil war, there were traitors who went unmolested. We are now finding out how large a number in all parts of the land and in all walks of life, were plotting against the nation's life in our late war. Until recently we would not believe that human nature could be so treacherous. It is this discovery that has led to the deportation of a few thousands of aliens who never should have been allowed to come hither.

The immigrant question should be revised and greater care taken in passing through our gates undesirable agitators of European schemes for European conditions. While we cannot be indifferent to old world tyrannies and follies, that is no reason for disrupting our own government. And although we may lend a hand in improving conditions overseas, let us not do so by sending emissaries with torch and bomb—or even with intemperate and revolutionary speech.

ARLINGTON BOARD OF TRADE.

Tuesday evening was a gala one for the members of the Board of Trade, it being the annual occasion when the ladies were the guests of the association. The affair was held in G. A. R. Hall and it will go down in the history of the Board of Trade as one of the most pleasant the organization has ever held. The attendance was large and the program, which was under the direction of Harry Connell, was both interesting and entertaining all the way through. A short business meeting preceded the entertainment, during which several new members were admitted and several applications for membership were received.

The entertainment program was made up of orchestral selections; violin numbers by Samuel Glazer, accompanied on the piano by Miss Edna Byram; piano selections by Mrs. Carl Miller; baritone solos by Mr. Briston; character songs and dialogues by Miss Helen Kerner; tricks of magic by Will Baker. All the numbers were decidedly entertaining and many encores were given. Mr. Baker was the main attraction of the evening, as his tricks were new and mystifying to his audience, many being performed while standing in the audience.

Edward Deering presented an original poem on Xmas and it brought forth a great laugh, being composed as only Ed Deering could compose anything along this line. N. J. Hardy was called on for a story and acceded to the request.

After the entertainment a collation was served, after which dancing was enjoyed until a late hour.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE.

The packed house at the Hollis Street Theatre during the past week to see Otis Skinner, in "The Rise of Peter Barban," has again demonstrated that the popularity of this sterling actor has not waned on time. Mr. Skinner will remain for one week more at the Hollis before departing to other cities. It has become his custom to present a new play each season and to present it to America at large would take some five years or more, hence he has to make a condensed visit to Boston and other large cities. Bostonians have had an opportunity of seeing "The Rise of Peter Barban" before New York theatregoers. Needless to say the latter will soon be among the great majority. Mr. Skinner says that he has played to larger houses with his latest comedy-drama, which, incidentally, was written by his talented wife, in conjunction with Jules Eckert Goodman, than he ever did with "Kismet," a famous money making play that drew large audiences.

There will be a matinee on Wednesday and Saturday, and patrons should make early application at the box-office so as not to be disappointed.

RED CROSS NOTES.

The Red Cross will meet as usual on Tuesday for the making of refugee garments. This will be discontinued after Feb. 1. The Metropolitan Chapter has 3500 garments which are to be finished by this date. These will be distributed for making among the Branches and Auxiliaries. Will you come and help your Branch fill its quota?

The knitting will go on indefinitely. There is an emergency call for sweaters and helmets for returned service men suffering from tuberculosis. It is very important that this appeal be answered as soon as possible. Will those who can knit long sleeve sweaters and helmets please consult at once with the Knitting Committee.

Sergeant Frederick M. Kirlin gave a most interesting and informing talk on his work connected with the Intelligence Department during the Great War in France. His story was enlivened by some amusing anecdotes and incidentally he expressed his appreciation of the work done by the Red Cross for the men in the service.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS.

—Mr. Guy Raynes, who for several weeks has been quite ill at his home 27 Acton street, is improving and is now able to sit up during part of the day.

—Of local interest is the article on "Les Miserables," published in the January third number of the Epworth Herald. The article is from the pen of Rev. E. R. Leach.

—This (Friday) evening there will be a special meeting of the Music committee and choir of the Methodist church. Plans will be made for furthering this department of church service.

—Mr. and Mrs. Wallace C. Corner and children, Marion, Martha and Wallace, Jr., of Dow avenue, were entertained, with other members of the family, at a Christmas party and tree given by Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Corner of 13 Dover street, Cambridge.

—Wednesday evening, Jan. 14, the Baracca class of the Methodist church will hold an oyster supper. The same evening the district superintendent, Dr. Webster H. Powell, will hold the fourth quarterly conference, the most important meeting of the year.

—An important meeting of the official board of the Methodist church was held Monday evening. Detailed plans for the new church drive were made which will be given to the people through a special letter to be sent to all members and attendants next week.

—The news of the double tragedy occurring at Los Angeles last week, when both Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Sinclair died of asphyxiation, was a shock to their many friends in this section. It will be recalled that Mr. Sinclair was vice-president of the Choral-cello Co., an automatic musical instrument. We think Filene was one of the first to install such a one in his department store.

—All unit officers of the Methodist church met Thursday evening, when the pastor, Rev. E. R. Leach, made plans for special meetings to be held in connection with evangelistic campaign week on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday evenings during the week of January 11-18, which evenings will be given over to cottage prayer meetings. From Jan. 18-25 special services will be held every evening, with ministers from neighboring churches in charge.

—An informal card party was held by the Sewing Circle on Wednesday evening, at the home of Mrs. Norval Bacon. There were four tables for auction bridge, the first prize for ladies being won by Mrs. William Drouet, while the booby prize was awarded Mrs. George Chickering. Mr. C. L. Doe captured the first prize for gentlemen and Mr. William Drouet won the gentlemen's prize. Supper was served at eleven o'clock and a general good time enjoyed by all.

—Twenty new members joined the Methodist church last Sunday, at the reception of members. Fully half as many more, intending to join, were unable to be present for various reasons and will be added to the church membership at the next reception of members. The communion service will be held next Sunday. In the evening, evangelistic services will take place. The pastor, Rev. E. R. Leach, will speak at the Park avenue Methodist church, Somerville, the same evening, from six o'clock until quarter of seven, on "Quo Vadis."

—The moving picture entertainment given by the Locke school Association on Tuesday evening was witnessed by a good sized audience, the collection taken being thirty dollars. Mr. Foster P. Doane and Mr. E. R. Leach made a request, previous to the collection, for funds to defray expenses for the machine, with above result. The membership committee, with Mrs. C. F. Brackett, chairman, was requested to conduct a campaign for members. It was also planned to have the program committee, Mrs. Herbert A. Snow, chairman, give another program as near the first of Feb. as possible.

—Mrs. J. Herbert Mead gave a delightful "at home," Friday, Jan. 2, from three to five o'clock when guests were especially invited to meet Mrs. Clarence E. Gale of Wollaston avenue who, with her family, are about to move from the Heights. The Gales have purchased a handsome estate of six acres on Common street, Belmont. Their going from the Heights is a source of deep regret to the Gale's large circle of friends and many were glad of this opportunity of expressing this regret and extending best wishes for their happiness in their new home. Mrs. Mead is an easy and charming hostess and the afternoon was one of genuine pleasure. Delicious refreshments were served in the dining room from a beautifully appointed table, the Xmas decorations being accented by Jack roses which adorned the table. Mrs. Mead was assisted in the dining room by Mrs. Merrill of Winchester.

chester, Mrs. James Dow and Mrs. Oscar Schnetzer.

—The Mid-winter musical of the Arlington Heights Study Club will take place on Tuesday, Jan. 13, at the home of Mrs. Verne Q. Powell.

BURGLARS CAUGHT.

On several occasions during the past month or more, we have reported burglaries in Arlington and Lexington. By a rather remarkable combination of circumstances having no connection with the breaks reported, the thieves have been caught and a large portion of the loot recovered. The story in brief is that Lexington Coal Co., having suffered considerable loss through pilfering the coal bin in rear of the office on Mass. avenue, appealed to Chief Franks and on Tuesday night officers Sullivan and Buckley were detailed to watch for the thief. While on this duty the officers were startled at seeing two men running from the rear of Hunt Block. The officers started in pursuit and captured one of the fleeing men, who proved to be William McDonald, a clerk in the pharmacy of O. G. Seeley and formerly employed at the drug store of H. A. Perham in Arlington. The police had recognized McDonald's companion as Robert L. Scott of Arlington, and after securing McDonald, officers Sullivan went to Arlington in a hunt for Scott, finally locating him at 1113 Mass. avenue and having him taken into custody by an Arlington officer, on charge of breaking and entering the dry goods store of A. M. Tucker in Hunt Block, from which burglary he was fleeing when his companion was caught.

When brought to Arlington police station certain features of the affair led Chief Urquhart to conclude that the men were more than likely responsible for breaks in Arlington and had both men brought to his office and questioned. The result of this grilling was a confession from both men, who also revealed where goods stolen could be found. Wednesday afternoon Arlington police station had a great lot of goods easily identified by victims of recent robberies in Arlington. The young men are held in $2,000 bonds each for the Grand Jury.

ST. JOHN'S MEN MEET.

Men of the St. John's Parish and their friends gathered at the Parish House at 74 Pleasant street on Wednesday evening, at eight o'clock, to listen to Rev. William Harman van Allen, D. D., whose subject was "World Politics and America." Mr. William D. Ellwell introduced the speaker of the evening in a neat little speech, and for an hour, Dr. van Allen held the closest attention of his hearers on a subject in which all Americans should be interested and alive. Dr. van Allen said in part, "The man who today claims to be a hundred per cent American, is a traitor to his country. No nation can live to itself any more. America has never had a foreign policy, but she must have one in the future. We are concerned with all the happenings of the world and must assume our responsibilities. Nothing must interfere with our friendship with France and England, countries with similar governments and tastes as America. Dr. van Allen stated that France had progressed farther than any other nation in reconstruction and touched very generously upon the industrial and social conditions of all the countries. He claimed that Germany had progressed marvelously because her people were not afraid of work, and that they were "hard at it." From Russia came our Bolsheviks, from the starving country who are unrest is riot. These so called "Reds" can only be controlled and warded off by a complete understanding of them by us. "England is in bad shape" said the speaker, "lacking in real leaders." He thus lead up to the League of Nations and made the statement that it must be ratified by America, even if she sacrifice some of her sovereignty. At the close of the lecture, refreshments of delicious sandwiches, doughnuts, cheese and coffee were enjoyed, as well as the mingling of friends and a quiet general discussion of the points brought out by the speaker of the evening.

WOMAN'S CLUB NOTES.

At the next meeting of the club, on Thursday afternoon, January 15, at half past two o'clock, Mrs. Minna Elliot Tenney Peck will give a lecture, illustrated by stereopticon, on "Quaint Nooks in Holland and the Art of Rembrandt." Mrs. Peck's former talks to the club will be recalled with pleasure and it is certain that her lecture will be much enjoyed.

MOST FRAGRANT OF FLOWERS

Baltimore Admirer Declares the Breath of the Lilac Stands Unmatched for Sweetness.

When the lilacs breathe, odors of Araby become fetid and asstringent in comparison. When the lilacs breathe, their odorous breath carries the fragrance of the distillation of a generation of life and love that they have gathered to themselves, where they have bloomed by the garden wall or against the porch pillar. The old home—wonderful in the vividness of its memories and associations—is created by the picturing of beauty and tenderness that the fragrance of the blossoming lilacs brings to the mind. One sees the path through the garden winding down to the clump of lilacs. The faces of other days are framed in the pictures that fancy creates through the magic of the lilacs.

The panicles of bloom are in full flower and the blooms will be hailed with joy by the multitudes who have in their feelings the sentiments to which lilacs appeal. They are a meditative and reflective kind of flower. They come so quietly in the spring. They bloom forth so abundantly and magnificently. They sing their concert to the airs of April and cause the four winds of the heavens to become their survivors to the joy of mankind.

The lilacs are the softest and most persuasive of all tints, those of lavender and purple, with some of driven whiteness. How wonderful their beauty, the assembling of the blossoms and their disposition upon the branch! How full of art! How exquisitely Dresden is the lilac as it swings in the breeze! And every lilac bush is a product of years of growth, and that growth goes on perennially until one and another generation is laid beneath the sod, and the lilac has been entrusted with the cherished memories of youth and maturity and age—passed out of life.—Baltimore American.

INTRODUCES DRUG IN LUNGS

French Physician's Method of Administering Chloroform Said to Be Pronounced Success.

A new method of administering chloroform, brought out in France by Dr. Guisez, is described in the Scientific American. The doctor no longer applies the drug by the usual compress or mask placed over the mouth, but introduces the chloroform vapor directly into the lungs through a tube running into the windpipe. The tube method has already been employed in several hundred cases, and with great success. Besides being very useful for operations to be performed on the head and neck, it is of great interest because it never produces nausea.

The effects of the new method will serve to explain the reasons why chloroform operations always produced nausea when operating by the former method, for it appears evident that the nausea was caused by a part of the chloroform vapors being absorbed by the oesophagus and the stomach.

Average Intelligence.

There have been a number of reports about the results of the psychologic tests in the army which are not particularly encouraging. Of course it is all very well to find that more than half of those taken in the draft were of an average or of a higher intelligence and that four out of every 100 were of a "very superior" intelligence and eight to ten out of every 100 of "superior" intelligence. This will probably average up higher than what would be secured in any European country, but the fly in the ointment is the high relative percentage of those who are "below average" intelligence, or of an "inferior" intelligence, or are "very inferior," with several grades and degrees even below the "very inferior."

Nelson's Victory Cups.

Recognition of the English "silent navy" which did so much to win the war has come in the presentation of two communion cups to the Royal Naval Barracks church of Portsmouth, England. These cups were used on Nelson's flagship Victory in the battle of Trafalgar. Thus the glory that was England's in the earlier days joins hands with the glory of the present, and the spirit of Nelson is linked with the spirits of the brave men who stood by in all the long months of the North sea vigil. Nine years ago these cups were given to a church in Glasgow. The widow of the rector of this parish now gives them to the navy as the most fitting holder of the goblets, which were made about 1800.

Misunderstanding.

"The Germans are always being misunderstood, and this misunderstanding is always to the poor fellows' disadvantage."

The speaker was Adolph Junck, the millionaire dye importer of Duluth.

"I know a German motorist," he went on, "who arrived one June evening at a crowded country road house. When the clerk told him the house was full, he said desperately:

"Can't you at least give me a bundle of hay somewhere?"

"There ain't a thing left, mister," said the clerk, "but a bit of cold mutton stew."

New Substitute for Oil.

A factory has been started in Sweden for extracting oil from schist, thus adding one more to the number of substitutes already on the market. Large quantities of alum schist are found in the district, yielding benzine and crude oil.

Episcopal Church in Eastern Massachusetts Launches Nation Wide Campaign

Movement Which Has Succeeded Brilliantly in Other Parts of Country Now in Full Swing Here Also

The Presbyterians and the Methodists of our country having put over great campaigns to deepen their spiritual life and increase their resources in workers and in wealth, it is not surprising that the Episcopalians should now do the same thing. Perhaps it is no accident that the Church's Call as the movement is named hereabouts should be launched in the month when New Englanders regularly celebrate Fore Fathers' Day and should begin to function at the dawn of the Pilgrims' Ter-Centenary year.

Bishop Anderson of Chicago, when he spoke at the General Convention on this great movement of the Church, pointed out that men have long been asking, "Can the Episcopal Church be democratized?" quoting the slogan of years ago "No Bishop No King!" and adding that at a time when kings have reached the point of unpopularity, and even of decapitation, the same thing may overtake bishops unless they watch out.

Accordingly the Diocese of Massachusetts, not to be behind the other Dioceses of the country, inaugurated Monday, Dec. 29th at St. Paul's Cathedral what is probably the most impressive undertaking to which the Church in this part of the country has ever addressed itself.

Practically every clergyman of the Diocese of Massachusetts assembled at half-past ten for Holy Communion, responding to a call of Bishop Lawrence in the Cathedral of St. Paul's in Boston on Monday and discussed the Diocesan expression of the Campaign.

The Service of Lights, which will formally mark the expression in the Churches of the beginning of the campaign is scheduled for Sunday evening, January 11. This has been found very effective wherever used, as symbolizing the passing down from Christ to the Apostles and from the Apostles through the Bishops, Priests and Deacons to the laity of the spirit of love and service for which God was made Man. The choristers, as the service proceeds, pass down the aisles of the Church, and from their candles which have been lighted at the Altar, light the candle held by each member of the congregation who sits at the head of the pew; this candle in turn is used to light the candles of all the others in the pew; every member of the congregation having been supplied with a candle.

Church people generally will have been prepared for this service and informed concerning preliminaries of the campaign at a meeting which was held in St. Paul's Cathedral Sunday afternoon, January 4th, at four o'clock, to bring together the Parochial Committees from all the Parishes in the Diocese, and for information concerning the method and the meaning of The Church's Call. To this meeting the public generally is invited. Bishop Lawrence, Dean Roumaniere, Mr. H. Anthony Dyer of Providence, who was present at the General Convention, and who has been very successful in reaching men with the spiritual note there struck in regard to the Nation-Wide Campaign, as well as Mr. Philip Parker, lay chairman of the Campaign will make addresses on this occasion.

Other means of education in regard to this great movement will be the Information Men, modelled somewhat on the idea of the Four Minute Men who did so much to help win the war, and who in every Parish, preferably at the Notice Period of the Sunday service, will talk for a few minutes on the progress which the Campaign has made during the week, and on the way in which the workers in that particular Parish can most effectively cooperate with what is being done all over the Diocese.

The immediate objectives of the Church's Call are Action, Worship, Personal Religion, Education, Service, and Expansion. In the matter of giving nothing is for the present to be done. This Campaign, unlike many others, quite definitely defers all talk of money until the spiritual revival which is its definite object has been achieved.

Whatever the reason for it, there is in the Episcopal Church today a very large proportion of latent and inactive power, but when the Survey of the Church's resources, soon to be undertaken, has been completed it will reveal in a way never before realized what the Church has done, some of the things it has done inadequately, and the great tasks to which it must now address itself.

One refreshing thing about the movement is the honesty with which, all over the country, the Church has faced its sins of omission. It frankly says, for instance, that in the Home Missionary field much less has been done than should have been done, for Indians, for negroes, for immigrants, and for those who live in rural communities. In the field of religious education and in the great realm through which social justice should be achieved, it likewise admits itself lacking. "What are we doing to replace the saloon?" is one of the searching questions the survey asks everywhere. And then, bearing on the labor problem, so insistent at the present moment, it confesses "The I. W. W. has been much more interested so far in getting at the men in the logging camps than the Church has been!"

In a word, those behind this movement realize that when the Church is able to visualize the whole programme of the Church, when it sees how it is related to the nation and the world, when we grasp the part that it plays, and should play more and more—in stabilizing and moulding the political and industrial life of the times, affection for the Church and spiritual zeal in behalf of the things for which the Church stands are bound to increase. "The war," say the leaders, "is ended, and a reaction has set in. We can never get back into the old rut nor ought we to be willing to do so; the world is never going to be the same again. Politically, industrially, religiously, everything is changing. As Bishop Anderson of Chicago pointed out at the General Convention: "Movements greater than the French Revolution are taking place right before our eyes, in such a changing world the Church cannot remain static; it must supply a stabilizing force."

"Though it was only a week ago that the first meeting of the Massachusetts Council of the Campaign was held in Boston, six working committees already have been formed, headed as follows: Parish campaign committee, Arthur K. Gardiner, chairman of the Church of Our Saviour, Brookline; committee on speakers and assignments, Henry J. Ide, chairman, of Trinity Church, Newton Centre; committee on publicity, preparation of material and information, Rev. Ralph N. Harper, chairman, of St. John's Church, Winthrop; committee on Pageants, Rev. John W. Suter, Jr., chairman, of Hyde Park; committee on Meetings, John Quincy Adams, Jr., chairman, of Brookline.

Mr. Charles E. Mason, who is a vice chairman of the Council; William R. Cordingley, who is the treasurer, and Miss Eva D. Corey, Mrs. Reginald W. Bird, Mr. B. Preston Clark, Mr. Hollis French and Mr. John F. Neal are other lay members of the group active in launching this campaign

Y. W. C. A. PLANS WORLD PROGRAM

Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr.,
Heads Association's 1920
World Service Program.

$3,000,000 NEEDED FOR WORK.

Leader Calls Association a "Stabilizing Influence" in Outlining Post-War Program for Women—Federal Council of Churches to Announce "Y. W.
C. A. Sunday."

Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., chairman of the National Educational Campaign Committee of the 1920 World Service Program of the Young Women's Christian Association, has made the following statement:
"Since the war we are more than ever aware of the economic, industrial, educational, social and religious dif-

Chairman of the Educational Campaign Committee of the Young Women's Christian Association.

culties which beset the lives of girls and women everywhere. In meeting the post-war needs of women the Young Women's Christian Association
stands as an instrument of service, tested and proven by war, and organized to meet the manifold problems of peace.

"Because of its fifty odd years of experience in meeting fundamental problems affecting girls, the Young Women's Christian Association is an organization particularly fitted to exert a stabilizing influence upon the troubled times through a consistent program of service for girls and women.

"American women are asking how they may share in the world's reconstruction. They can do so by enlisting the support of their communities for this World Service Program, which will insure to the world a healthier and better womanhood.

"This campaign of the Y. W. C. A. to tell the people of the United States about its work and to raise $3,000,000 with which to carry on Y. W. C. A. work during 1920 in the United States,
Europe, China, Japan, India, South America, Egypt, Siberia and Mexico will close the week of February 22 to 29, which will be known as Y. W. C. A.
Week.

"The Federal Council of Churches will probably set one Sunday as a time for ministers throughout the country to address their congregations on general conditions affecting women and the Young Women's Christian Association
as an instrument of service.

"The immediate task is to bring to the people of the United States a knowledge of conditions affecting the lives of women in all parts of the world. We can no longer ignore the character, the manner of life and the ideals of other peoples, whether we want to or not. A special call is now coming to the Association from China, Japan, India and South America, where work was held back during the war because of the necessity for special activity in France and the United States.

"The World Service Program calls for $4,500,000. Of this amount $1,500-000 has already been secured."

The educational campaign committee includes among its members Mrs.
Robert E. Speer, president of the National Board of the Y. W. C. A.; Mrs.
Henry P. Davison, Mrs. William Van
V. Hayes, Mrs. Robert L. Dickinson,
Mrs. William Adams Brown, Mrs. Van
Sanford Merle-Smith, Mrs. Lewis H.
Lapham, Miss Ellen Hale Stevenson, Mrs. Frederic B. Pratt and Mrs. Herbert Lee Pratt.

SMALL Y. W. C. A. IS COMMUNITY CENTER

Recreation for Girls is Important Feature of Work.

Fifty-two young women in the United States are known as Y. W. C. A.
"town secretaries." All of which means that the fifty-two are organizing recreation work for girls and for the community at large in towns of less than 10,000 inhabitants.

The Y. W. C. A. may be in one rented room or more. It may be a whole building, but at any rate there is a recreation room and if possible a kitchen, reading and writing rooms. If the Y.
W. C. A. has a building of its own it becomes a community center, where all women's organizations may meet.

MIDDLESEX SPORTSMAN'S ASSOCIATION ANNUAL.

It was a very merry crowd of sportsmen who gathered in the Old Belfry Club hall, Lexington, on Wednesday evening, to take part in the annual jollification meeting of the Middlesex Sportsman's Association. It was one of those affairs to which the members look forward; the kind that lingers in the memory of the members long afterward. Every minute of the evening was enjoyable and those who could not attend missed a real treat. The club house was thrown open to the members and long before the hour set for the opening of the program, members gathered and inspected the building.

Promptly at the hour set for the program the members marched into the main hall where the ball was set rolling by singing a few of the popular songs.

The curtains on the stage then parted and disclosed an attractive camp scene. Dr. H. B. Osgood, in the person of a cook, busily engaged in getting supper for the "bunch" who were out hunting and fishing. William H. Nevins of Cambridge acted as assistant cook, but made a very poor attempt at mixing his batter for the flapjacks. While they were arguing over the cooking, the hunters came in. N. J. Hardy proudly showing his catch, a crow and a live rabbit, telling a most interesting yarn of how he made his captures. Haverlock Mader was the next hunter to arrive. He had been out for trout but as a trophy displayed a fine flounder. Howard Munroe came straggling in with his gun and dog and displayed a fox which he had shot. Clifford Currier proudly showed a pheasant and President H. K. Reading came in with an empty game bag. Each of the hunters had some sort of story to tell the other, much to the amusement of the audience, many of the stories being jokes on fellow members. During this scene Mr. Nevins sang a group of songs in his usual excellent manner. This lively scene was followed by a still livelier one, a three round bout between Lawrence and Arthur Neddo of Cambridge, two youngsters who showed real ability with the padded gloves.

President Reading, during a short address which he made to the members, announced that the membership of the club had now reached 1050 and that by the Feb. meeting, the membership would reach to 1100 mark or over. He announced that W. C. Adams, of the Fish and Game Commission, had arranged for an all day meeting at the State House to-day (Friday) in order to give the lovers of hunting and fishing an opportunity to talk over matters pertaining to the welfare of fish and game.

In connection with the meeting there was an exhibition of trophies of the rod and gun and life sized paintings of birds, the latter being from the brush of R. A. Quimby of Dorchester.

The speaker of the evening was Major George I. Cross of Arlington, who served with the 26th Division in France and also with the 8th and 10th French armies during the time of the occupation of Germany. He was later sent back to France by the United States government to gather data for historians. He told a most interesting story of the war as he saw it, of the achievements of the American doughboy and of the progress made by this country after we entered the war. Major Cross also had a number of photographs which he showed on a stereopticon, Frank V. Gordon acting as manipulator of the machine. Major Cross was given a great round of applause at the close of his talk.

The evening was rounded out with a get-together gathering, the chairs being removed and the members making new friends and greeting old ones. A collation, served by N. J. Hardy, closed the evening.
